In Zend Framework documentation of v1.2, is there any way to get the list of the Zend Engine:Components in your code? Example: If I want to find out which class is registered as controller in my php file, I want to find out (if I have only 2 Zend Engine:Controllers, or Zend Framework:Controllers, I don't care. I just want to write the code to find out which of them is used). Thanks! A: list of all registered components: Zend_Loader::getRepository()->list(); list components of a specified class: Zend_Loader::getRepository()->list('Zend_Controller'); manage installed components (usually, due to the fact that this list is not static, you should be doing this in your bootstrap or autoloader, but I can imagine the need of this functionality) Zend_Loader::getRepository()->addRepository('Zend_Controller_Router_Route'); have a look to the documentation of Zend_Loader Some good examples can be found here: f678ea9f9e
